Single-day workshop

Renewable energy sources such as solar, geothermal, hydrogen and biomass play an important role in the future of our state and nation. As a leader in economic development and local deployment agent for the U.S. Department of Energy, the Mississippi Development Authority is responsible for providing learning opportunities that teach the application and benefits of these sources.

Learn valuable information about how your building or facility can save energy and money. This workshop will offer speakers covering an array of topics such as geothermal applications, funding and installations for geothermal, solar energy and alternative fuels for vehicles. The session will address cost savings issues and ways to reduce energy costs through the use and implementation of these applications.

Target Audience

Schools, IHLs, energy and facility managers, fleet managers, state agencies, commercial and industrial business owners and local citizens interested in renewable energy are encouraged to participate in this event.
